FERMENTED WATER HYACINTH,(Eichhornia crassipes) AS FOLIAR FERTILIZER IN BITTER GOURD (Momordica charantia)

APRIL 2025

ABSTRACT

This study evaluated the efficacy of fermented water hyacinth (Eichhornia crassipes) juice as a foliar fertilizer on the growth performance of bitter gourd (Momordica charantia). Four treatments were applied: Treatment I (Control- pure water), Treatment 2 (20% inclusion level of fermented water hyacinth juice), Treatment 3 (40% inclusion level), and Treatment 4 (60% inclusion level). Parameters assessed included plant height, number of leaves, fruit yield, and biomass production.

The results demonstrated that Treatment 3, with a 40% inclusion level, significantly enhanced all measured growth parameters compared to the control and other treated groups. Plants in Treatment 3 exhibited the highest mean values for fruit yield and vegetative growth, indicating optimal nutrient absorption and utilization. Conversely, Treatment 4 showed a decline in performance, suggesting possible nutrient toxicity or over-concentration effects at higher inclusion levels.

The results indicate that a 40% inclusion level of fermented water hyacinth juice is the most effective concentration for enhancing the growth and productivity of bitter gourd when applied as a foliar fertilizer. The study highlights the potential of utilizing water hyacinth, an abundant aquatic weed, as an eco-friendly and sustainable agricultural input.

CVS Leads Clean-Up Drive for a Greener Community

 Ms. Ronalin Magcalas | April 28, 2025

Students and teachers of Concepcion Vocational School (CVS) showed their care for the environment by leading a successful Clean-Up Drive on April 28, 2025. The activity took place from the side of the new Concepcion Municipal Hall all the way to the CVS campus.

As early as morning, students and faculty members gathered with gloves and garbage bags, ready to collect plastic waste and other litter. Working together in groups, they picked up plastic bottles, wrappers, and other trash scattered along the road.

Psalm 90:12

Teach us to number our days, that we may gain a heart of wisdom

What made the clean-up more meaningful was the way the group also sorted the waste. Plastics were separated for possible recycling. This effort teaches the importance of proper waste disposal and helps support future environmental projects in the community.

The results were immediately seen—what was once a dirty area now looked clean and refreshing. More than the physical change, the activity reminded everyone how a united community can make a big difference.

The CVS Clean-Up Drive was not just about cleaning the surroundings. It was a step toward building a more environmentally aware and responsible generation. The event also encouraged others in the community to take action and help care for nature.

The success of this activity shows the strong spirit of teamwork and the value of community service. CVS continues to be a role model in promoting cleanliness, discipline, and care for the environment.

CVS Trainees Join Brigada Eskwela 2025 at Concepcion West Central Elementary School

Trainees were assigned to specific tasks based on their qualifications:

Electrical Installation and Maintenance trainees handled minor wiring and electrical repairs;

Diploma in Agricultural Technology students (batches A, B, and C) were in charge of cleaning classrooms and outdoor areas;

Agricultural Crops Production trainees focused on weeding, garden cleanup, and plant maintenance;

Bread and Pastry Production trainees served baked cupcakes;

Cookery trainees prepared and distributed lugaw (rice porridge) for all volunteers.

The day ended with the unifying cheer: “Sa TESDA, kayang-kaya basta sama-sama!” — a reminder of what can be achieved through teamwork and service.

Certificates of commendation were awarded to all CVS trainers as a token of appreciation for their guidance and supervision. The activity was coordinated by Ma'am Vina Jireh A. Navarro, with the full support of the CVS faculty and administrators.

Through this outreach, CVS continues to uphold its mission of skills application with social responsibility, proudly serving the community beyond the classroom.

Cvsians Reminded of Campus Discipline and Integrity in School-Wide Address

CVS ORACLE

In a campus-wide gathering held on the morning of June 25, 2025, Concepcion Vocational School (CVS) reinforced its commitment to discipline, safety, and responsibility through a reminder of school rules and regulations addressed to all trainees, faculty, and administrative staff.

Sir Rico D. Briones, Vocational Instruction Supervisor, gathered Cvsians from various qualifications to formally reintroduce the faculty and school personnel. He addressed pressing concerns affecting the campus community: tardiness, non-compliance with the prescribed dress code, absence of identification cards, and failure to wear face masks as mandated by TESDA's health advisory against monkeypox.

Parking violations were also discussed, along with improper waste disposal, poor segregation practices, and the general cleanliness of the school environment. Students were reminded of the importance of doing what is right even when not being supervised, an expression of integrity and maturity expected of every CVSian. Briones underscored that integrity must be practiced in everyday actions, not merely followed when instructed.

He called on the Student Council Organization (SCO) officers to actively uphold these standards by setting an example and confronting rule violations when necessary. Responsibility, he stressed, is not limited to self-compliance but includes ensuring that peers do the same.

After the address, Sir Steven Balingit and other qualification instructors were instructed to patrol the campus. They reinforced guidelines on proper motorcycle and vehicle parking, encouraged students to pick up visible litter, and checked segregation bins to ensure compliance with waste management policies.

To conclude, SCO President Joseph Mark De Guzman reminded the student body of the consequences and penalties associated with improper waste disposal and related violations. The effort served as a renewed call for discipline, respect for shared spaces, and an active sense of accountability among all members of the CVS community.

Tilapia Takes the Spotlight in CVS Singkanyaman Food Festival

CVS ORACLE

Cookery NC II trainees, faculty members, administrative staff, culinary guests, and trainees from other qualifications gathered at TESDA–Concepcion Vocational School on Monday, June 30, 2025, for the CVS

Singkanyaman Food Festival, a full-day event celebrating Filipino cuisine through a tilapia cooking contest aimed at promoting culinary heritage and teamwork.

The event commenced with the flag ceremony, followed by a welcome message and program briefing by Sir Rico D. Briones, Vocational Instruction Supervisor. The motor parking area was transformed into an open cooking arena where participants were given time to prepare their dishes, while guest chefs delivered live cooking demonstrations and shared stories from their culinary journeys.

Among the featured guests was Chef Ronn Buan, a seasoned culinary professional with experiences in Macau and local establishments like Shrimp & Brew and Rushini's Korean Resto. A former CVS trainee himself, Chef Ronn encouraged the participants with a simple yet profound message: "Enjoy lang ang pagluluto."

Ronnie M. Cachero, a chef and pastor from Sta. Rita, Concepcion, with international experience in Bahrain and Dubai, urged the trainees to be passionate and committed. "Maging seryoso kayo, nandito kayo sa tamang lugar... Ang pinaka-importanteng sangkap ay pagmamahal"

Chef Roberto "Robie" Buan Jr., a young entrepreneur and marketing graduate, inspired students to see cooking as a stepping stone for their future. "Laging tandaan ang mga itinuro sa inyo—magagamit ninyo 'yan kahit saan kayo mapunta," he said.

While the contestants cooked, other trainees from different qualifications eagerly observed the entire cooking process and attentively listened to the talks, learning not only techniques but also the values and discipline behind culinary work.

Tilapia Takes the Spotlight in CVS Singkanyaman Food Festival

After the cooking time concluded, each group presented a three-course meal featuring tilapia as the hero ingredient. Dishes were judged based on taste, presentation, nutritional value, and originality.

Emerging as Champion (1st Place) was Booth 3, whose team impressed the judges with Kare-kareng Tilapia, OKWRAP (Okra in a Wrap), and Ice Crish (Ice Cream Fish). The group also won Best Booth Design and the People's Choice Award.

Booth 1 took 2nd Place with Tilapia Express (inspired by Bicol Express), Tilapia Lumpiang Sariwa, and Overload Turon. They also bagged the Most Nutritious Dish Award.

Booth 2 followed with 3rd Place, presenting Stuffed Tilapia, Tilapia Okoy, and Bibingkang Tilapia.

The awarding ceremony capped off the day with certificates presented to all winning teams and appreciation certificates given to the guest chefs. The CVS Singkanyaman Food Festival not only highlighted the trainees' skills and creativity but also fostered camaraderie and cultural appreciation within the school community. The event stands as a reminder that through shared recipes and heartfelt cooking, Filipino culinary heritage continues to thrive—one tilapia dish at a time.

Concepcion Vocational School Conducts Fire Safety Seminar in Partnership with the Bureau of Fire Protection

This annual activity aims to raise fire safety awareness among students and staff.

July 11, 2025 | Concepcion Tarlac

Concepcion Vocational School (CVS), in partnership with the Bureau of Fire Protection (BFP) – Concepcion Fire Station, held its annual Fire Safety and Prevention Seminar on July 11, 2025. The activity supports the school's ongoing commitment to promoting safety and disaster preparedness within the campus.

The program began with an opening prayer led by Vocational Instruction Supervisor, Sir Rico D. Briones, followed by a welcome message from CVS Administrator, Dr. Consolacion A. Talisik, who stressed the importance of fire awareness in everyday life.

The highlight of the event was a lecture and live demonstration led by Senior Fire Officer 1 Carl Jim “CJ” L. Yabut and Fire Officer 1 Joseph Jairo “Jai” Q. Roxas from BFP-Concepcion.

SO1 Yabut led an engaging discussion covering:

- How fire starts and spreads (the Fire Triangle: heat, fuel, and oxygen)
- Common causes of fire in households and schools
- Fire prevention tips
- Evacuation protocols during emergencies
- Staying calm and alert when danger strikes

“Seminars like this are important so that when a fire incident occurs, we know what to do and we won’t panic,” Yabut reminded students. “We should remember everything we’ve learned here, though we hope we never have to use it.”

Following the lecture, FO1 Roxas demonstrated how to properly use fire extinguishers, explaining the color-coded types and their uses. He introduced the PASS technique:

- Pull the pin
- Aim at the base of the fire
- Squeeze the handle
- Sweep side to side

Students and trainers were then invited outside for a hands-on demonstration. Under the guidance of BFP personnel, selected participants practiced using fire extinguishers to reinforce what they learned.

The seminar concluded with a group photo and closing message from Sir Briones, who thanked the guest officers and BFP-Concepcion for their continued support. He also commended the students and faculty for their active participation.

This yearly seminar continues to be a vital part of CVS’s safety efforts—reminding everyone that preparedness, awareness, and calm action can save lives.

CVS @30: Tatlong Dekada ng Serbisyo at Kasanayan. Sa CVS, Kayang-Kaya ang Kinabukasan!

 July 15, 2025

CONCEPCION, TARLAC — Cvsians filled the grounds of Concepcion Vocational School with pride and excitement on July 15–16, 2025, as they commemorated the school’s 30th Foundation Anniversary with the theme “Tatlong Dekada ng Serbisyo at Kasanayan. Sa CVS, Kayang-Kaya ang Kinabukasan!” The two-day celebration gathered trainees from various qualifications, faculty, and staff in a dynamic showcase of unity, talent, and legacy.

Preparations began a week before the event. Key responsibilities, including organizing tournaments, assigning emcees, setting up the sound system, managing program flow, and overseeing logistics were delegated to students and officers across qualifications. Leading the efforts were the Diploma in Agricultural Technology (DAT) 22-A class and the Student Council Organization officers under the guidance of SCO Adviser Engr. Bryan Jake B. Castro. CVS ORACLE, the official student publication advised by Ma’am Amapola Jana P. Malonzo, played a key role in documentation and designing medals and certificates. Presidents from each qualification also took part in the planning meetings, forming various committees for sports, technicals, creative contests, and hosting.

On the morning of July 15, a lively parade of CVSians and staff marched from the Concepcion Municipal Center to the CVS campus, proudly carrying their banners. Upon arrival at the Instructional Building stage, the emcees: Kim Justine Manguera and Ronalin Magcalas, warmly greeted the crowd and opened the program with a brief historical background of CVS

The ceremony began with a prayer led by Sir Carlos D. Mola, Assistant Vocational Instruction Supervisor, followed by the singing of the Philippine National Anthem conducted by Dr. Lerma P. Llorente, Assistant Professor IV. Ma'am Restituta L. Paras, Administrative Officer IV delivered the Opening Remarks, expressing gratitude to all who contributed to making the event possible. This was followed by an inspirational message from Sir Rico D. Briones, Vocational Instruction Supervisor, who reflected on the meaning behind this year's anniversary theme.

To energize the crowd, a body-and-mind booster exercise was led by the Animal Production Swine NC II trainees. This was followed by a lively shoutout roll call from each qualification and the faculty and staff. Muses and escorts from each group also took the stage in a well-received modeling segment that added flair to the morning program.

The symbolic lighting of the torch was performed by Marinel Igamin, followed by the Oath of Sportsmanship led by Ralph Lauren Cortez. Afterwards, Engr. Castro, along with the sports facilitators and game representatives, announced the mechanics and venues for each tournament—including basketball, volleyball, badminton, Mobile Legends, poster making, and slogan making.

Day 1 featured elimination and semifinal rounds of the sports and contests. Day 2 held the final matches and judging of creative entries. The winners, details and complete results will be featured in the Sports Column, while the awarding ceremony will take place on July 23, 2025, with full coverage in the next issue of CVS ORACLE.

CVS Obstacle Race Turns Campus Into Battleground: DAT-A Clinches Back-to-Back Victory

Poster, Slogan, and Sweat—CVSians Showcase Talent and Tenacity on Day 2 of CVS @30 Celebration

On July 17, 2025, students from various qualifications of the Concepcion Vocational School competed head-to-head in the Poster and Slogan Making Contest and the intense Obstacle Race—two major highlights of the second day of CVS’s 30th Foundation Anniversary. With the theme “Tatlong Dekada ng Serbisyo at Kasanayan. Sa CVS, Kayang-Kaya ang Kinabukasan!”, the day unfolded as a celebration of talent, creativity, and physical endurance.

In the morning, representatives from Diploma in Agricultural Technology 22-A, Animal Production (Swine), Animal Production (Poultry-Chicken), Organic Agriculture Production, Agricultural Crops Production, and Electrical Installation and Maintenance gathered at the Animal Production room. Student facilitators Anna May Baluyut and Jomel Soliman led the event by presenting the rules and criteria for judging, then officially announced the theme.

Participants channeled their creativity and advocacy into visually striking posters and slogans. After the timed session, the outputs were collected and submitted to the Administrative Office, where a panel of CVS administrative staff selected the winning entries.

Slogan Making Winners:

Champion – Kim Justine Manguera (Diploma in Agricultural Technology 22-A)
 Slogan: “CVS@30: Tatlong Dekada na nagbibigay Pag-asa, Pangarap ay Abot Kaya!”
 1st Place – Ehlwell John L. Salvador (Animal Production – Swine)
 2nd Place – Danieleee Charm N. Perez (Agricultural Crops Production)

Poster Making Winners:

Champion – AL Prince R. Garcia (Organic Agriculture Production)
 1st Place – Jonathan S. Salmin (Agricultural Crops Production)
 2nd Place – Ivan Justine G. Mariano (Animal Production – Swine)

By 12:30 PM, the crowd gathered at the Instructional Building stage, where the most anticipated event kicked off—the infamous CVS Obstacle Race. Each qualification had chosen ten brave participants to endure the physically demanding course. Before the race began, Engr. Bryan Jake Castro stood before the competitors and called out the command: “Get set, ready, go!” And just like that, the madness began.

The race was no typical sprint. It was a chaotic and exhausting marathon of strength, speed, and strategy, spread across eight hidden stations around the campus. Each team had to follow a unique sequence of stations, adding disorientation to an already grueling event.

Mud was everywhere—thick, deep, and unavoidable. Contestants crawled on their stomachs like soldiers through trenches of sludge. At one station, they blindly searched for ping pong balls. At another, they had to blow flour until the cup was emptied, leaving them coughing through white clouds. Arithmetic formulas tested their mental sharpness mid-race, while a hula hoop balancing task required all ten members to cooperate using only their index fingers.

The chaos didn’t end there. Some had to walk blindfolded through a minefield of paper “landmines”, while others spun around in locked shoulders and raced to answer CVS trivia. In perhaps the most difficult test of balance, competitors were challenged to shoot a ball into a basketball ring while holding a spoon with a calamansi fruit in their mouth—trying not to drop it mid-shot. There were also team walking challenges with bound feet, more crawling, and constant sprinting from station to station. The final task? Locate Engr. Jake himself—hidden in his parked car, far from the finish line.

Through the mud, the noise, and the pure exhaustion, one team remained undaunted.

When asked how they managed to beat the other teams by a staggering 25-minute lead, team leader Ralph Lauren Cortez explained: “While other teams were still trying to locate their first stations, I instructed our team to scatter first, identify all the stations, and only then begin. We worked smart. That was our edge.”

The strategy paid off. DAT-A’s performance was not just a show of endurance—it was a masterclass in coordination, communication, and tactical planning. With this victory, they defended their title and solidified their reputation as the team to beat.

As Day 2 of CVS @30 closed, the energy remained high. Whether through artistic expression or sheer athletic determination, CVSians once again proved the depth of their talent and unity. All winners from the day’s contests and athletic events will receive their official recognition during the culminating program on July 23, 2025.

CVS @ 30 Foundation Day: Igniting Passion Through Volleyball, Basketball, Badminton, and Esports
